[Stony giggles while smoking, then turns and whispers to Frankie, they kiki together]

What? What's wrong with that?

[Stony]: You know, every time we get high, you start looking like Sugar Bear. (laughs)

[Frankie, laughing]: For real.

[Cleo]: (unamused) Yall crazy

[T.T.]: (innocently) You do kind of look like Sugar Bear.

[Cleo]: Forget all y'all! (everyone but Cleo laughs)...Ol' simple chicks.

[Frankie]: Cleo, don't get salty. (Frankie laughs)

[Cleo]: Damn. Before they started laying people off, they was paying folks $15 an hour at that place.

[T.T.] Oh, man. That's good money.

[Cleo]: Girl, for $15 an hour, I'll be old. Four-ply radio. "What I got to do, sir,?" type employee! (Everyone laughing) They had to pull me off that damn machine.

[Stony]: I know. That's right.

[Cleo]: Overtime be like Twenty-Two Fifty an hour.

[T.T.] (depleted) I don't know what I'm going to do. Now that Luther's taking taxes off my check, I'll make it half as much as I used to.

[Frankie]: Only way we gonna see cash is we take a bank.

[Cleo]: Now, see, I'm with that.

[Stony]: Y'all chicks done lost your mind. Might as well not even talk about this no more.

[Frankie]: (turning to look at Stony) Well, I'm talking about it. Ain't nobody gonna stop me from talking about it.

[Stony]: (Stony returns the eye contact with Frankie, speaking seriously) Well, talk is cheap... (jokingly breaking the tension) FOO!

(Everyone laughs)
